

Ingrid Holmes

Ingrid Holmes is a Director at E3G. She leads their work on finance and is interested in the interface between policy, finance and economics. Her work has a dual focus is on how to better target public financing to scale up private finance for the low carbon transition and reform of capital markets to accelerate this transition. She also has a long-standing interest in energy efficiency. Previous roles have included EU policy lead at low carbon boutique fund manager Climate Change Capital; Energy and Environment Advisor in the UK Parliament; and Science Policy Adviser at the Department for Environment. Prior to that Ingrid worked for 9 years in science publishing and journalism, with her last role based in New York working for Nature Publishing Group. She has a CFE (Certified Financial Engineer) in Macroeconomics from Birkbeck College London; a BSc (Bachelor of Science) in Biological Sciences from the University of Edinburgh; and an MSc (Master of Science) in Environmental Technology from Imperial College London.